MOUNT AUBURN CEMETERY.

THE first meeting in furtherance of a design for a garden cemetery, was had in Nov. 1825, at the house of DR. JACOB BIGELOW in Boston, which was attended by eight gentlemen, viz:—GEO. BOND, WM. STURGIS, JOHN LOWELL, SAM'L. P. GARDINER, THOS. W. WARD, NATHAN HALE, JOHN TAPPAN, and JACOB BIGELOW: with them the plan for a cemetery originated, and Messrs. Bond and Tappan were appointed a committee for finding a suitable lot in a desirable location for the purpose. That committee used every diligence in their duties, but without any good success, and little or nothing was done on the subject for the five following years.

In 1830, Mr. Geo. W. Brimmer offered to the Horticultural Society of Massachusetts, 72 acres of the land, now constituting part of Mount Auburn, for the sum of 6,000 dollars, being at the reasonable price of $83 33 1-2 per acre; this lot had long been prized as a retired and beautiful spot, a cool retreat from the summer's sun, and a favorite walk for the students at the university and the youth in its vicinity. It was formerly known as "Stone's woods," but as if by general consent, it had acquired the more interesting cognomen of "Sweet Auburn."

A public meeting was called, of gentlemen interested in founding a cemetery, in June 1831, at which the Hon. Judge Story presided, assisted by the Hon. Edward Everett, as secretary. It was then and there unanimously resolved, to accept the offer made by Mr. Brimmer: an act of incorporation was obtained of the legislature of the state, June 23, 1831, and the consecration of Mount Auburn took place on the 24th of Sept. of that year: an interesting address was delivered by the Hon. Joseph Story, prayers by the Rev. Dr. Ware and Rev. John Pierpont, and the following hymn from the pen of the last named gentleman, gave interest to that solemn and impressive occasion.

HYMN.

To thee, O God, in humble trust,
 Our hearts their cheerful incense burn,
 For this thy word: "Thou art of dust,"
 And unto dust shalt thou return.

And what were life, life's work all done,
 The hopes, joys, loves, that cling to clay,
 All, all, departed, one by one,
 And yet life's load borne on for aye!

Decay! decay! 'tis stamped on all,
 All bloom in flower and flesh shall fade,
 Ye whithering trees when ye shall fall,
 Be our long sleep beneath your shade!

Here to thy bosom mother earth,
 Take back in peace what thou hast given,
 And all that is of heavenly birth,
 O God, in peace, recall to heaven.

In addition to the lot purchased, of 72 acres, other adjoining grounds were obtained by the horticultural society, to the extent of 38 1-3 acres, at a cost of $3,766 89, being at about $98 30 per acre; thus combining together 110 1-3 acres, sufficiently capacious for 20,000 lots of 300 feet each, at a cost of $9,766 89; a clear title to which, was generously transferred to the proprietors of the cemetery for $4,222 42.

In the course of 1831 and '32, about $30,000 were expended in making roads, building a gate-way, fence, a building for the superintendent, with other incumbent objects of improvement; and every year since, has been noted by renewed efforts with great expenditures, to make the place what it should be, to meet the best hopes of its founders, and of those associate proprietors, who have since then united with them in this great, good and laudable undertaking.

The front entrance to the cemetery from the old Cambridge road, through a lofty gate-way, is from an Egyptian model, (the drawing of which was made by Dr. Bigelow,) which gate opens in front of Central Avenue, on the north boundary line of the cemetery; its cap bearing the following inscription: "Then shall the dust return to earth as it was; and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." The frame was made of wood, finished by a rough-cast imitation of stone ; this has been removed the present season and one of stone supplies its place.

MOUNT AUBURN CEMETERY is situated on the western boundary line of Cambridge, and stretches into Watertown two thirds of its surface : lies west from Boston about four and a half miles, and one and a quarter miles west from Harvard University. comprises 110 1-3 acres of dry gravelly land, finely wooded with healthy vigorous trees in almost every variety of the forest species. There are five artificial ponds of water : the highest mound is 125 feet above the waters of Charles River, which flows nearly to the south and south eastern line of the cemetery. The whole extent of ground is divided by carriage avenues 20 feet wide, and foot paths six feet wide, (for an extent of thirty miles,) so curved and winding in their course, as to make it difficult for a stranger to keep the even tenor of his way and thread the mazy labyrinth with a mind serene ; hill and glen salute the eye at almost every stopping point, and the ever varying forms of mausoleums, temples, and obelisks, from the most splendid production of the sculpturing art, to the neat and simple pyramid, claim attention in every direction. The grounds are mostly overshadowed by foliage of large forest trees, the whole combining to affiliate the spot, as a suitable place for the living to visit and there ponder on the ever changing state of man's mortality.

He who hath walked in grief, with mournful tread,
O'er that vast mansion for the silent dead ;
Sure must have felt, slow creeping o'er his breast—
The impressive stillness of the place, for rest.

The greatest elevation, called Mount Auburn, is destined at some future day to bear a tower erected on its summit, whose apex may afford to the visitor a splendid panoramic view of the surrounding country, and the variety of scenes in which the eye may there revel, will nearly compete with that most interesting of all panoramic views, as seen from the dome of the state house in the city of Boston. From the proposed tower, may be seen the city looming in the east, with its ten thousand buildings and its numerous elevated spires, steeples and eminences, its shipping and its railways to every section of the county; to the right of which, in a south-east direction, Roxbury and Dorchester with many country seats, beautiful gardens, with the blue hills of Milton in the back ground; in the south, Brookline and Brighton, with their numerous grazing hills and well cultivated farms, affording a rich treat to the eye: in the south-west, the beautiful villages of Watertown and Waltham, with the meandering of the crooked Charles, and many water mills on their southern boundary line; West Cambridge with famous Lexington on the north-west; Somerville and Medford in the north, Charlestown with its battle monument 220 feet high, its Navy yard and Dry Dock, costing one and a half millions of dollars; Malden on the north-east-by-north, and Chelsea and Lynn on the north-east, bounded by the waters of Massachusetts Bay, whose surface is dotted with the heads of many green islands and made brilliant with numerous craft, plying their sails or steam, for reaching adjacent or distant places.

At the funeral solemnities of Dr. Spurzheim, whose body was there deposited November 17, 1832, aged 56, the following beautiful Ode, by the Rev. Mr. Pierpont, was part of the exercises:—

Stranger, there is bending o'er thee
 Many an eye with sorrow wet;
 All our stricken hearts deplore thee
 Who, that knew thee, can forget?
 Who forget what thou hast spoken?
 Who, thine eye,—thy noble frame?
 But that golden bowl is broken,
 In the greatness of thy fame.

Autumn's leaves shall fall and wither,
 On the spot where thou shalt rest;
 'Tis in love we bear thee thither,
 To thy mourning mother's breast:
 For the stores of science brought us,
 For the charm thy goodness gave;
 For the lessons thou hast taught us,
 Can we give thee but a grave?

Nature's priest, how pure and fervent
 Was thy worship at her shrine !
 Friend of Man,—of God the servant,
 Advocate of truths divine,—
 Taught and charmed as by no other,
 We have been, and hope to be ;
 But while waiting round thee, brother,
 For thy light,— 'tis dark with thee !—
 Dark with thee !—no ; thy Creator,
 All whose creatures and whose laws
 Thou didst love,—shall give thee greater
 Light than earth's, as earth withdraws.
 To thy God thy godlike spirit
 Back we give, in filial trust ;
 Thy cold clay—we grieve to bear it
 To its chambers—but we must.

REV. JOHN THORNTON KIRKLAND, D. D.

A monument, which is a tribute of the Alumni of Harvard University to the memory of the late President Kirkland, has been erected on the summit of Harvard Hill. It is a large upright sarcophagus, of Italian marble, with gothic panels and decorations, and is surmounted by a book and double scroll. The following is the inscription :—

And on the reverse :

IOANNES THORNTON KIRKLAND, S. T. D.
 Decessit die Aprilis XXVI.
 A. D. MDCCC XL.
 Ætatis suæ LXIX.

John T. Kirkland, and a twin brother, George Whitfield Kirkland, were born at Little Falls, town of Herkimer, Herkimer county, State of New York, on the 17th of Aug. 1760. The father of the twins, was Samuel Kirkland, of Norwich, Connecticut, a useful missionary among the indians for many years. In Nov. 1772, the family settled in Stockbridge, Massachusetts; at 4 years of age, young John T., received a kick from a horse in the centre of his forehead, which caused an indent which was prominent through life: at the age of 13, he went to Andover on a course of studies for two years; thence he was admitted into the freshman class of Harvard University. In the winter vacation of 1787, being then a junior, 16 years of age, he enlisted as a volunteer in the army of 4400 men, under the command of General Lincoln, to put down the insurrection of Shays; after a brief and successful campaign young Kirkland returned to his studies at Cambridge.

In a memorandum of his own hand writing, he observed, "one misfortune befel me in my junior year, which this world can never repair, my mother on January 23d, 1788, died; the highest pleasure I could ever enjoy was that of pleasing her."

Immediately after commencement, on the 15th of July, he returned to Andover, as an assistant in the academy for one year; being then doubtful in his own mind, which of the two professions, law or divinity, should claim him its disciple. In July 1790, he returned to the paternal roof where he studied divinity with the Rev. Dr. Stephen West, but the high Hopkinsian doctrines of that teacher, were not congenial to the mind of the pupil. In 1792, he made a visit to his father in the state of N York, and spent several mouths in the neighborhood of the Onedia Indians.

He returned to Cambridge College, and by means of the theological treasures which a later Hollis had contributed to the library of the University, Mr. Kirkland was enabled to pursue that free and independent study of the sacred profession, which led him to embrace more enlarged and juster views of religion than those in which he had been trained from childhood; on the 16th of Nov 1792, he received the appointment of tutor in the department of logic and metaphysics, which office he held till June 14, 1794.

John Thornton Kirkland preached for the first time, at the Church in Summer Street, August 23, 1793; was ordained pastor over that society, February 5, 1791, and continued its revered and respected head, until 1810. On the 14th of November, of that year, he became President of Harvard University, which for 17 years, proved to be the Augustan age for that college; the breath of intellectual life was infused into the almost lifeless pulses of the institution, and it became animated with an entire new vital spirit: The law school was established; the medical school resuscitated and re-organized; the theological, erected into a separate department, and learned professors, placed in the chairs of the several faculties: The college was crowded with students; never had it been so popular and prosperous.

On the 1st of Sept. 1827, President Kirkland was united by marriage, to Miss Elizabeth Cabot, and on the 28th of March 1828, he resigned the office as Harvard's head.

In Oct. 1828, he commenced a tour with his wife, through these United States: and the year following, they embarked at N. York, on the 11th of April, for Havre, and passed three and a half years abroad, on an extensive course of travel: they returned home in Oct. 1832, he, being much improved in health, and resided in the city the remaining days of his busy, diversified and eminent life, which after an illness of about one week, terminated at 6 o'ck., A. M. on Sunday, April 26, 1840, aged 69 years.

Thus passed into the shadow of death, the great, the learned, and the good John Thornton Kirkland, whose generous dealing with the youth while under his charge, kept him on the list with the moneyless and destitute: a discourse on his life and character was delivered by the Rev. Alexander Young, at the Church on Church Green, Boston, May 3, 1840.

Mr Kirkland was quite a voluminous writer: a large amount of his labour has been printed, but a still larger amount remains for his biographer to preserve from oblivion by the same means.

and wife of

Professor John Farrar, was born
 October 11th 1787,
 and died
 September 20th, 1824.

Joseph Stevens Buckminster, was born in Portsmouth, N. H. in 1783, his father Joseph Buckminster was a settled clergyman in that town. The son received his degree in Harvard University, in 1800, when he was but 17 years of age, and was then esteemed the best and ripest scholar in that graduating class. In his youth, it is said of him, that while his associates were indulging in recreations and sports, that he would be in retirement at study : Mr. Buckminster was ordained as pastor over the Church and Society in Brattle Square, in 1803, (having then numbered 20 years,) successor to the much beloved and respected Rev. Peter Thatcher, D. D. who died in 1802.

Mr. Buckminster was liberal in his theological views, yet he was truly evangelical; founding his religious faith on christian revelation, divine grace and deep repentance for sin, as necessary to salvation: his publications gave proof of correct taste as a writer and of great acquirements as a scholar: he died in June, 1812; at the early age of 29 years, at a time when the friends of learning and liberal christianity, were indulging in ardent anticipations of his future usefulness and fame.

Thus perished in his prime, "that youthful marvel, the hope of the church, the oracle of divinity, full of all faculties, of all studies, of all learning."

The funeral sermon was by the Rev. Dr. J. T. Kirkland, June 11, 1812. his remains were removed to Mount Auburn, in 1842.

A posthumous volume of his sermons was published under the auspices of the Brattle Street Society, which passed through several editions: for biblical learning and enthusiasm, there were but few his equals, and we may add, none to surpass him, which he generated a taste and love for in the community, and which since then, has been much cultivated.

VICINITY OF MOUNT AUBURN.

In the immediate neighborhood of the Cemetery are some few objects worthy of especial notice: the venerable alma mater on college green, planted in 1636, sixteen years after the landing of the pilgrim fathers on the ice-bound, rocky shore of Plymouth, has now 38 professors and tutors, 515 students, a library of 50 000 volumes, and extensive philosophic apparatus, with every other facility for enlarging the sphere of knowledge, education and of virtuous ambition: individual cost to prudent, careful pupils about two hundred dollars per year, including board. The botanic garden of the college, is about three quarters of a mile north-westerly from Mt. Auburn, and is worthy of examination and admiration.

Fresh Pond whose beautiful sheet of water covers a surface of one hundred and eighty-two and a half acres, is about one fourth of a mile north of Mount Auburn. This spot has been famous many years as a shady and pleasant resort for parties during the summer season; and the ice trade in winter is extensive: 100,000 tons were taken the past season from the pond, and it is capable of furnishing 1,000 tons to the acre: for the tropical climates of the earth this article has been shipped with a great return profit to the enterprising merchant: it is said, that the State of Massachusetts may be supplied with cotton from abroad, sufficient for its manufacturing purposes, by exchanging cargoes of ice for cargoes of cotton; the conveyance for ice to the shipping, is by a railroad from the pond, to wharves in Charlestown, a distance of six miles, on which a car for passengers, also, passes three times per day each way; fare 1² 1-2 cents. The passenger depot is near to the two bridges in Charlestown.

The experiment for freezing the water, for early shipment, was successful in part, as it hastened its coagulation three or four weeks earlier than it would have frozen in the pond, but the ice was not so clear, clean, or pure a quality.

Jacob Wyeth, a graduate of Harvard College, on a tour through Europe, not finding any spot so beautiful to his imagination as his father's cow-yard, on the banks of Fresh Pond, offered to take that part as his only share of the paternal property, and this was freely awarded to him by all concerned. It was soon converted into a place for public resort, and an independent fortune for its proprietor, was his reward for thirty years correct attention to its incumbent duties.

ESTATE IN THE VICINITY OF THE CEMETERY.

We wish we were at liberty to name the owner of a splendid garden comprising about 117 acres, which is situated about one mile in a northeast direction from Mount Auburn: but the worthy proprietor whose princely fortune enables him to gratify an exquisite fancy in every thing appertaining to the useful or ornamental arts, rather declines having any public record made of his unique and beautiful grounds.

He has, probably, the most highly cultivated as well as the most beautiful establishment in the whole country; every object which there meets the eye possesses some peculiar property, or characteristic of its tasteful projector. The greenhouses are extensive and filled with fruits and gorgeous flowers; grapes, lemons, oranges, &c. &c. are in perfection any day throughout the year, raised in his own shrubbery, brought to maturity by the warm qualified air of steam. The cattle and bipeds of every kind are the very best of their species.

Those ladies and gentlemen who have visited this villa on Fridays, are delighted with the neatness and perfection which pertains to every thing for the gratification of three, out of the five senses of our enjoyment, viz: those for seeing, hearing and for inhaling the blossomed perfumes, but those for handling or for tasting, are there out of place.

We cannot resist the impulse for relating an incident respecting its owner which is peculiarly characteristic of his feelings, habits, patriotism and liberal bearing. One of his helpmen, from Vermont had so strong a penchant for one of the Durham cows of fine quality and form, that he often mentioned it to his associates, and, that if he could raise funds enough to purchase one, he should like it; this soon reached the ear of his employer, who at once told him, that when his term of engagement expired, perhaps, he could have one at a reasonable price; when the time had arrived for his departure, he was taken to the grazing-field, to say, which of the cows he liked best, and when that was ascertained, with the reasons given for wishing to possess such an animal, viz: for the improvement of the breed in Vermont, and to help pay off a mortgage on his little farm, the owner informed him he could have two cows if he wished; the helpman replied, that he could not raise funds enough for more than one; the reply then was, that he should have two as a free gift, and turning suddenly from the astonished vermonter, directed another man to drive two of the best cows in the lot, to the helpman's boarding house in the neighborhood.

The price of a lot of 300 superficial feet is EIGHTY DOLLARS, and in proportion for a larger lot.

1. From any lots numbered 1 to 350 inclusive and unsold, (a choice from these having been offered by auction) at par.

2. From the remaining lots already laid out and unsold (between 350 and 551) on payment of TEN DOLLARS.

3. From any other part of the cemetery, on payment of TWENTY DOLLARS; provided however, that

One dollar is payable to the secretary for making and recording each deed and the same for each transfer of a lot.

☞ The practice of allowing selections to be made at large, is found to be attended with serious difficulties which cannot be obviated. To lessen it, as far as may be, the trustees design to survey and lay out portions of the grounds in lots, to which the right of selection on payment of TWENTY DOLLARS, shall thereafter be confined. Selections at large will then be discontinued, except in extraordinary cases and on payment of a greater sum for the privilege.

CONDITIONS, LIMITATIONS AND PRIVILEGES WHICH EVERY LOT IS SUBJECT BY THE DEED OF THE CORPORATION, TO WIT :

And if the proprietor shall omit for thirty days after notice, to erect such land-marks and mark the number, the trustees shall have authority to cause the same to be done at the expense of said proprietor.

Fifth. If the land-marks and boundaries of the said lot shall be effaced so that the said lot cannot with reasonable diligence be found and identified, the said trustees shall set off, to the said grantee his or her heirs or assigns, a lot in lieu thereof, in such part of the cemetery as they see fit, and the lot hereby granted shall, in such case, revert to the corporation.

Sixth. If any trees or shrubs situated in said lot, shall, by means of their roots, branches, or otherwise, become detrimental to the adjacent lots or avenues, or dangerous or inconvenient to passengers, it shall be the duty of the said trustees for the time being, and they shall have the right to enter into the said lot, and remove the said trees and shrubs, or such parts thereof as are thus detrimental, dangerous, or inconvenient.

Seventh. If any monument or effigy, or any structure whatever, or any inscription be placed in or upon the said lot, which shall be determined by the major part of the said trustees for the time being, to be offensive or improper, the said trustees, or the major part of them shall have the right, and it shall be their duty to enter upon said lot, and remove the said offensive or improper object or objects.

ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS.

It having been brought to the knowledge of the trustees, that various depredations have been of late committed upon the flowers and shrubs at Mount Auburn, and that large parties have assembled within the grounds with refreshments, and for purposes perfectly incompatible with those to which the grounds are devoted; the trustees have been obliged to adopt the following additional regulations, which will be rigidly enforced.

1. No refreshments, and no party carrying refreshments, will hereafter be permitted to come within the grounds at Mount Auburn.

CIRCULAR,

Addressed to the Proprietors of Lots in the Cemetery.

BOSTON, JUNE 5, 1841.

At a meeting of the trustees of Mount Auburn Cemetery, holden this day, it was voted and ordered.

That in all the deeds of lots which shall hereafter be granted by the corporation, it shall be provided as a condition, that no Tomb shall be constructed within the bounds of the cemetery, except in and upon lots situated in such parts of the grounds, as shall be designated by the trustees for that purpose.

The trustees have been led to this measure by their conviction that the multiplication of tombs in Mount Auburn has become a great and growing evil, encumbering the grounds during the visiting season, with the materials and rubbish of building, and endangering the stability of trees, by the large excavations which are required in their formation. But much greater objection exists in the fact, that the frequency with which some of the tombs are opened, and the want of sufficient tightness in the doors of others, have already given rise in the hot months, to a perceptible nuisance, which, if not seasonably checked, may hereafter grow into an intolerable evil.

Since the commencement of the undertaking of the Cemetery of Mount Auburn, the trustees have, at various times, expressed their earnest hope that the proprietors would see the expediency of devoting their lots to the purpose of separate, rather than of promiscuous interment. The very object of retiring to the country, has been to avoid the evils and abuses which were known to be attendant on the customs of city sepulture. It seldom happens that inhumed bodies remain secure in receptacles provided for the collection of indefinite numbers. Each successive generation crowds out its immediate predecessors, whose, unknown and dismembered remains are disposed of at the discretion of the undertaker. On the other hand, in a place like Mount Auburn, where space is abundant, the separate grave, allotted, marked and registered for the resting place of each individual, is likely to remain inviolate for ages to come. This peaceful and permanent rest was the undoubted object proposed in the original foundation of this sanctuary of the dead, now become the pride of our metropolis, and the solace of its mourners, and destined to be the model of imitation throughout our extensive country. So far as its purpose shall be adhered to, the original object of the founders will be realized, and we shall hope that its ample shades will not be allowed to perpetuate the narrow, insecure, and sometimes revolting arrangements, which its institution was expressly designed to supersede.

The trustees are aware that they have no control, in the foregoing respect, over the disposition of lots already sold. But they hope that, by restriction in regard to the future, and by an appeal to the good sense and sympathies of the present proprietors, they may be able to set limits to an evil, to which their attention has been imperatively drawn.

JOSEPH STORY, President.

TRUSTEES.

JACOB BIGELOW,		B. R. CURTIS,
GEORGE BOND,		B. A. GOULD,
MARTIN BRIMMER,		ISAAC PARKER,
CHARLES P. CURTIS,		JAMES READ.

☞ The trustees beg leave to call attention to the rule which requires that the bounds of each lot should be denoted by a permanent fence or posts, and the number of each be marked in a permanent manner in iron, or upon stone. A disregard of this rule has already caused the loss of many landmarks, and rendered a reference to the catalogue of proprietors, and plan of the cemetery, in many cases, impracticable.

MOUNT AUBURN.

BY CHARLES SPRAGUE.

“ There was a garden, and in the garden a new sepulchre. ”

What myriads throng, in proud array,
With songs of joy, and flags unfurled,
To consecrate the glorious day,
That gave a nation to the world !

We raise no shout, no trumpet sound,
No banner to the breeze we spread;
Children of clay ! bend humbly round,
We plant a city to the dead.

For man a garden rose in bloom,
When yon glad sun began to burn,
He fell—and heard the awful doom—
“ Of dust thou art—to dust return ! ”

But He, in whose pure faith we come,
Who in a gloomier garden lay,
Assured us of a brighter home,
And rose, and led the glorious way.

His word we trust ! When life shall end,
Here be our long, long slumber passed;
To the first garden's doom we bend,
And bless the promise of the last.

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

BY CHARLES SPRAGUE.

One little bud adorned my bower,
And shed sweet fragrance round ;
It grew in beauty, hour by hour,
Till, ah ! the spoiler came in power,
And crushed it to the ground.

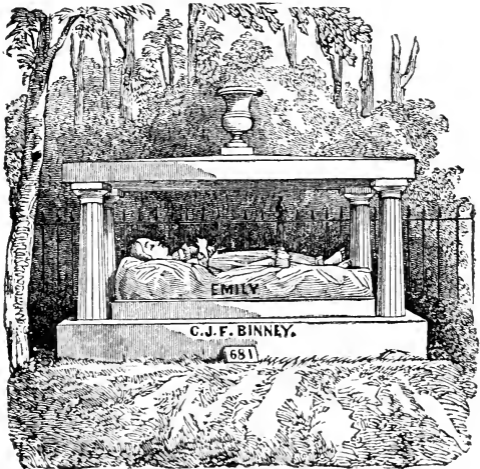

Yet not forever in the dust
That beauteous bud shall lie ;
No !—in the garden of the just,
Beneath God's glorious eye, I trust,
' Twill bloom again on high.

INFANT CHILD OF C. J. F. BINNEY.

Death found strange beauty on that cherub brow,
 And dashed it out.—There was a tint of rose
 On cheek and lip,—he touched the veins with ice,
 And the rose faded; forth from those blue eyes
 There spake a wishful tenderness,—a doubt
 Whether to grieve or sleep, which innocence
 Alone can wear. With ruthless haste he bound
 The silken fringes of their curtaining lids
 For ever;—there had been a murmuring sound,
 With which the babe would claim its mother's ear,
 Charming her even to tears. The spoiler set
 His seal of silence.—But there beamed a smile
 So fixed and holy from that marble brow,—
 Death gazed, and left it there;—he durst not steal
 The signet ring of Heaven.

Mrs. Sigourney.

We had copied these beautiful lines from a Philadelphia edition of "Mrs. Hemans's Poetical Works," but seasonably discovered the error, to give credit to our own favorite American poetess.

EMILY.

4 1-2 years, died 1839.

The sculptured form of the child of Mr. Binney, is an effective and interesting statue by Dexter.

The child is represented as reposing in sleep on a couch, tired with play : her head is gently reclining to the left : the likeness is well preserved ; her little hands across her breast : shoes and stockings off, and one of her tiny feet across the other ; the attitude and dress, with a sweet smile of innocence and peace still lingering on her lips, constitute, as a whole, a chef d'œuvre in the sculpturing art—so much living truth it seems to possess, as involuntarily to cause the beholder to lightly step around the spot, for fear of disturbing so calm a cherub slumber.

On a marble slab are the following lines—

“ Shed not for her the bitter tear,
Nor give the heart to vain regret,
’Tis but the casket that lies here—
The gem that filled it sparkles yet.”

The design and execution of the frame work around the above statue, was by Cary, whose workmanship on the temples just erected to Kirkland and Buckminster, is so justly admired.

DECORATIONS OF THE TOMB.

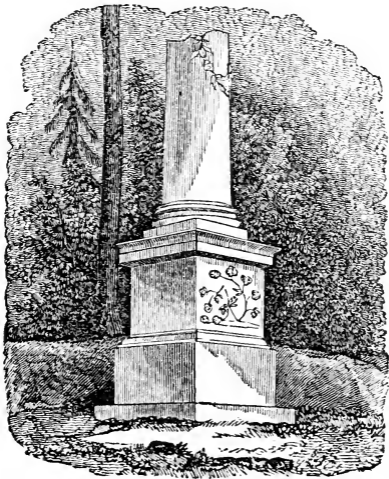

Bring flowers to the shrine where we kneel in prayer,
If for friendship’s offering, their place is there !
They speak of hope to the fainting heart,
With a voice of promise they come and part ;
They sleep in dust in the wintry hours.
They break forth in glory—bring flowers, bright flowers.
Mrs. Hemans.

There is no place where the flowers of nature seem more appropriately cultivated than around the grave : they call forth feelings of kindness towards those who have adorned the tomb of a friend with emblems most lovely in nature, and seem to give testimony of kind and affectionate sentiments during the lifetime of the deceased, continuing its holy and pure aspirations after mortality hath closed its earthly pilgrimage : there can be no kind return made for those later tokens of love or of friendly remembrance, save the satisfaction derived from an innate, good and just principle, and in having fulfilled a pleasing duty.

The decoration of a grave with flowers is peculiarly grateful and beneficial with its effect on the pilgrim, as showing in a pleasing and interesting light, the delicate web and cherished bond of attachment, from one to another, and where that friendship perennially blooms in fragrance and beauty around the last home of the departed.

“Bring flowers, bright flowers,” for the tomb of your friends.

JOHN TAPPAN.

The mausoleum at the junction of Linden and Narcissus paths, is an interesting piece of sculpture : it is an elevated broken pillar, with a garland of flowers thrown over its apex : the pillar resting on a pedestal with four equal pannels : on its front entablature, is a branch of a rose-bush, with one stem broken off, bearing with it five roses and buds, leaving five roses on the principal stem, emblematic of the number of the family deceased and living; under which are the words, "To my Wife and Children." On the entablature to the left, is the following record:

SARAH SALISBURY TAPPAN,

wife of

JOHN TAPPAN,

departed this life Aug 28, 1839.

If a man die shall he live again?

I am the resurrection and the life.

TOUCH NOT THE FLOWERS.

BY MRS. C. W. HUNT.

"O, do not pluck the flowers; they are sacred to the dead."

Touch not the flowers, the cherished flowers,
 The festal gift of summer hours;
 They're holy things; They bloom to shed
 A gladdening radiance round the dead;
 Their glowing cups and sweet perfume
 Dissolve the shadows of the tomb;
 'Twas no vain love,—the love that gave
 Their vernal freshness to the grave.

The snowy marble's sculptured height,
 May seem to thee a prouder sight,
 And ye may read in language fair,
 High names and deeds emblazoned there;
 But can its gorgeous splendor vie
 With the imperial lily's die?
 Its shrine a purer record be
 Of all that binds the lost to thee?

Touch not the flowers; we know not death
 Amid their loveliness; each wreath
 That floats upon the summer gale
 Bears saddening tones from sorrow's wail;
 O! can ye mark their bloom, nor feel
 The truth their bursting buds reveal,
 That earth her sacred trust must yield,
 Whether from bower or tented field?

There, where yon simple daisy rears
 Its smiling head, with many tears
 They laid a fair young bride to rest;
 Touch not the flower her love hath blest;
 Within its clustering petals lie
 Memories and hopes that cannot die;
 Her spirit o'er its leaves hath shed
 A life that animates the dead.

How vain the costly pile to rear
 O'er those who scorned such trappings here ;
 Swift time, with strong, o'er-mastering power
 Prostrates high tomb, and lowly flower ;
 But summer's breezes shall renew
 The rose's bloom, the violet's hue ;
 Not so the carved and fretted stone—
 It springs no more ; its glory's gone.

Touch not the flowers ; O, can there be,
 Childhood, a holier type of thee ?
 A fitter image of thy doom
 Than the wild floweret's transient bloom ?
 Let the pure sculpture gleam for him
 Before whose breath the world grew dim,
 But spare to purify the shrine
 Upspringing by a hand divine.

Touch not the flowers ; the fervent prayer,
 Poured o'er the erring slumberer there,
 On incense pinions shall arise,
 With blissful chastenings to the skies.
 God speaks in every glorious hue,
 Bright words of promise unto you ;
 O'er all his healing love he sheds ;
 Touch not the flowers. They are the dead's.

SUGGESTION FOR A CATACOMB.

Self preservation is one of the strongest natural propensities throughout life, and to preserve health during the time of our earthly sojourn, for future enjoyments or usefulness, is always accompanying the desire to prolong our existence.

When life has departed from the human frame, decomposition commences its slow, sure, and appalling process, and the worms of the earth subsist upon the remains of "what it once was :—" during this operation, if it is confined in a tomb, the effluvia, inseparable from the decay of animal substances, is detrimental to the health of the living, which on some occasions, has been the cause of sickness and of death.

If the lifeless form of a friend must be placed in a tomb to gratify the wishes of the living, it were better to prepare one for every burial on a small scale, yet large enough for a brick-width-wall around the body, and that covered with stone slabs, for the support of the filling in earth ; and thus, a tomb would be formed at once, safe from affecting the air we live in, while it would obviate all reasonable objections to a grave.

With many persons, the rough and harsh sounds which earth and stones produce, on being carelessly shovelled into a grave, is quite a trial to the poignancy of their aggrieved feelings; the tomb not requiring that offensive part of the operation, meets with their favor and decided preference; but on mature consideration of the objections to a tomb, and also to a common grave, the catacomb above recommended, seems to merit attention and adoption for being free from those obnoxious effects.

A VOICE FROM MOUNT AUBURN.

BY MISS H. F. GOULD:

A voice from Mount Auburn! a voice!—and it said,
 “Ye have chosen me out as a home for your dead;
 From the bustle of life ye have rendered me free;
 My earth ye have hallowed—henceforth I shall be
 A garden of graves, where your loved ones shall rest!
 O, who will be first to repose on my breast?”

“I now must be peopled from life’s busy sphere;
 Ye may roam, but the end of your journey is here.
 I shall call! I shall call! and many will come
 From the heart of your crowds to so peaceful a home;
 The great and the good, and the young and the old,
 In death’s dreamless slumbers, my mansions will hold.

“To me shall the child his loved parent resign;
 And, mother, the babe at thy breast must be mine!
 The brother and sister for me are to part,
 And the lover to break from each tie of the heart.
 I shall rival the bridegroom and take from his side,
 To sleep in my bosom, his beautiful bride.

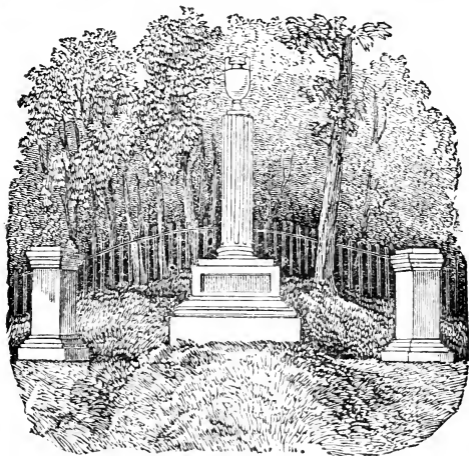

• “And sweetly secure from all pain they shall lie,
 Where the dews gently fall and the streams ripple by;
 While the birds sing their hymns, amid air-harps, that sound
 Through the boughs of the forest-trees whispering around.
 And flowers, bright as Eden’s, at morning shall spread,
 And at eve drop their leaves o’er the slumberer’s bed!”

“But this is all earthly! While thus ye enclose
 A spot where your ashes in peace may repose—
 Where the living may come and commune with the dead,
 With God and his soul, and with reverence tread
 On the sod, which he soon may be sleeping below,—
 Have ye chosen the home where the spirit shall go!”

“ Shall it dwell where the gardens of Paradise bloom,
 And flowers are not opening to die on the tomb ?
 With the song of an angel, a vesture of light,
 Shall it live in a world free from shadow and blight ;
 Where the waters are pure, from a fount never scaled,
 And the secrets of heaven are in glory revealed ?

“ A day hastens on—and an arm shall then break
 The bars of the tomb—the dread trump shall awake
 The dead from their sleep in the earth and the sea,
 And, ‘ Render up thine ! ’ shall be sounded to me !
 Prepare for that hour, that my people may stand,
 Unawed by the scene, at the judge’s right hand ! ”

GARDEN CEMETERY IN CHELSEA.

The Cemetery in Chelsea, on Central Avenue and Shawmut street, comprises three and one-tenth acres of land, purchased of the Winnissimmet Academy, for about $12,100: it will comprise about 550 lots of 300 square feet each: 66 lots have been sold, at prices varying from $25,00 to $53,00. The consecration took place Nov. 4, 1841, with prayers by Rev. Mr. Langworthy, Rev. J. S. Springer, an address from the Rev. S. D. Robbins, and by singing the following beautiful

HYMN.

Home of the coming dead!
The spot whereon we tread
Is hallowed ground:
Here earth, in sacred trust,
Shall hold their sleeping dust,
Until her bonds they burst,
And rise unbound

Here shall the weary rest,
And souls, with woes oppressed,
No more shall weep:
And youth and age shall come,
And beauty in her bloom,
And Manhood, to the tomb;—
Sweet be their sleep!

Around their lowly bed
Shall flowers their fragrance shed,
And birds shall sing:
On every verdant mound
Love's offering shall be found,
And sighing trees around
Their shadows fling.

The stars all night shall keep
Their vigils while they sleep;
And the pale Moon
Shall lend her gentle ray,
To light the mourners way,
Who seeks at eve to stray
And weep alone.

But there 's a holier light!
Hope, with her taper bright,
On every tomb,
Points upward to the sky;
There every tear is dry;
There 's no mourner's sigh,
Nor death, nor gloom.

Father ! to Thee we bow
 In adoration now,
 And bless thy love,
 For the assurance given
 Of life with thee in Heaven :
 Though here by tempests driven,
 There 's rest above.

The project for founding a Cemetery in Chelsea, originated with Mr. Simeon Butterfield and a few others, and Mr. B. was chosen President of the Association ; under whose guidance the good work has thus far prospered, and as yet, holds out prospects for greater and more beneficial results for time to come.

HARMONY GROVE CEMETERY, SALEM, MASS.

The first meeting had on the subject of a Cemetery at Salem was in Lyceum Hall in Febuary 1837, originating with Wm. H. Foster and P. Dodge, but the then difficulties attending the prosecution of the object were sufficient at that time to defer appropriations to more favorable auspices. On the third of September, 1834, another meeting was held at the same hall, when Stephen C. Phillips, presided as chairman and William H. Foster, as secretary ; on the sixth of that month, another meeting was held under the same officers, when Messrs. Francis Peabody, Joseph S. Cabot and Geo. Wheatland were chosen a committee for purchasing part of the present grounds : those gentlemen with Messrs. A. L. Peirson, S. C. Phillips, J. C. Lee, and Wm. Sutton, all of Salem, and Mr. Fitch Pool, of Danvers, were the most influential movers in the plan, and in carrying it out to its present beauty, perfection and usefulness.

The quantity of land purchased for this Cemetery was thirty five acres, at a cost of about 7000 dollars, being 200 dollars per acre.

Mr. Alexander Wadsworth of Boston, surveyed the grounds, and laid out the walks and avenues, and Mr. Francis Peabody, designed the gate way and rustic arch, which were built of stone. The Proprietors were incorporated in 1840. The consecration took place on Sunday, at 5 o'clock P. M., June 14th, (postponed from the 13th, on account of disagreeable weather,) seats were provided for three thousand persons, gradually ascending from Dell Avenue, near to Chapel Hill; the ground there being in the natural form of an amphitheatre; a rustic bower was raised where the interesting services of the occasion were performed, and it was estimated, that, in that silent and attentive assembly of friends and brothers, there must have been from six to eight thousand persons.

The Hon. Daniel A. White, delivered an address suitable to the time, place and occasion. Prayers were offered up by the Rev. Dr. B. Emerson of Salem, and Rev. Charles C. Sewall, of Danvers; odes sung from the pen of Rev. James Flint, and Wm. W. Warland, of Salem, and at the close of the ceremonies, the whole audience united in singing a hymn to Old Hundred, from the pen of Nathaniel Lord, Jr. Thus finished and closed, one of the brightest and most agreeable days ever enjoyed by the good people of Salem and its precincts.

On the 16th of June, a public sale was held for a premium bid on a choice for lots, and seventy-seven were disposed of, for 542 dollars above the minimum price, that being ten cents a square foot, for lots of 300 square feet each; thirty-six additional lots, were sold a few days afterwards, making 113 lots in all, at the opening of the cemetery. The highest eminence is Chapel Hill, which spot is reserved by the proprietors for the erection of a Chapel at some favorable opportunity; above 14,000 dollars have been expended in improving the grounds, and a number of mausoleums and obelisks, have been placed there, possessing much beauty in design and execution, with handsome enclosures to the lots; above 220 lots were disposed of by March, 1843.

The whole grounds were within the boundary line of Danvers, until by a Legislative enactment in 1840, the land was annexed to Salem, as also the three public avenues which lead to it; in the autumn of 1840, a road was constructed from the principal street in Danvers, to the Cemetery, and a gateway erected at that entrance in 1841.

The City government of Salem, united at an early date with the proprietors of Harmony Grove Cemetery in giving prosperity, stability, and usefulness to the undertaking, by a vote of 2000 dollars for five lots in different locations on the grounds, for the use of the city of Salem; comprising in all about three acres of land, but subject to the future care and government of the officers of the cemetery; and to meet the expressed wishes of many citizens of Salem, other burial grounds have been enlarged and made capacious enough for all required purposes for centuries to come.

“Harmony Grove Cemetery” seems as if nature had formed the spot for the purposes to which it is now consecrated: there are extensive views from its eminences; wild and picturesque dells; rough and craggy elevations of rocks; deep declivities covered with moss grown trees, open plains, shady groves, and sunny glades. Improvements will be continued to be made in ornamenting the grove with all the variety of trees and shrubs that will endure our climate; the attainment of the latter object being a permanent and prominent purpose with the designers of, and with the present government of the cemetery.

MEDITATION.

“It is not an unprofitable employment to frequently meditate on the transitory nature of the enjoyments of life, the uncertainty of their continuance and the last solemn scene which closes the efforts and puts a period to the exertions of the strongest as well as the weakest of mankind; meditation has a tendency to improve the kind affections, to curb, and to correct the aberrations incident in a greater or less degree to every one, and to impress mortality with a proper estimate of the vanities of life. When we reflect, that notwithstanding the noise and parade made among our fellow creatures, and though we may trace a long line of illustrious ancestors, or vested with the greatest power, or if possessed of a superabundance of wealth, yet the time is fast approaching when all these things shall be closed from our sight, and we must be henceforth severed from their enjoyment and go into that undiscovered "country from whose bourne no traveller returns."

OUR DAILY PATHS.

BY MRS. HEMANS.

There's beauty all around our paths, if but our watchful eyes
Can trace it midst familiar things, and through their lowly guise;
We may find it where a hedgerow showers its blossoms o'er our way,
Or a cottage-window sparkles forth in the last red light of day.

We may find it where a spring shines clear, beneath an aged tree,
With the foxglove o'er the water's glass borne downwards by the bee;
Or where a swift and sunny gleam on the birchen stems is thrown,
And a soft wind playing parts the leaves, in copses green and lone.

We may find it in the winter boughs, as they cross the cold blue sky,
While soft on icy pool and stream their pencilled shadows lie,
When we look upon their tracery, by the fairy frost-work bound,
Whence the flitting redbreast shakes a shower of crystals to the ground.

Yes! beauty dwells in all our paths—but sorrow too is there;
How oft some cloud within us dims the bright, still summer air
When we carry our sick hearts abroad amidst the joyous things
That through the leafy places glance, on many colored wings.

With shadows from the past we fill the happy woodland shades,
And a mournful memory of the dead is with us in the glades;
And our dream-like fancies lend the wind an echo's plaintive tone,
Of voices, and of melodies, and of silvery laughter gone.

But are we free to do e'en thus—to wander as we will—
Bearing sad visions through the grove, and o'er the breezy hill?
No! in our daily paths lie cares, that ofttimes bind us fast,
While from their narrow round we see the golden day flee past.

They hold us from the woodlark's haunts, and the violet-dingles back,
And from the lovely sounds and gleams, in the shining river's track;
They bar us from our heritage of spring-time hope and mirth,
And weigh our burdened spirits down with the cumbering dust of earth.

Yet should this be? Too much, too soon, despondingly we yield!
A better lesson we are taught by the lilies of the field!
A sweeter by the birds of Heaven—which tell us, in their flight,
Of one that through the desert air forever guides them right!

Shall not this knowledge calm our hearts, and bid vain conflicts cease ?
 —Aye, when they commune with themselves in holy hours of peace,
 And feel that by the lights and clouds through which our pathway lies,
 By the beauty and the grief alike, we are training for the skies !

“ OAK HILL CEMETERY, NEWBURYPORT.”

This Cemetery was consecrated on the 21st., of July 1842, with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Campbell, Rev. Dr. Dana, and the Rev. W. Dimmick ; an interesting and instructive address by the Rev. Jonathan F. Stearns ; the whole services made pleasing and impressive by odes from the pens of the Hon. George Lunt, and Miss H. F. Gould.

“ Oak Hill Cemetery ” is located on the flat surface of a hill, comprising about four and a half acres, mostly covered with a strong growth of oak trees, about one third of a mile from Newburyport, via., Newbury, on the south of the Newburyport Turnpike ; the west-south-west side of the hill, is bounded by a steep and abrupt slope. 233 lots have been laid out, varying from 150 to 400 square feet each, 75 of which have been sold at various prices ; all future lots are to be disposed of at 10 cents the square foot.

A few extracts may be made from the address with good results ; on page 3d, the Rev'd. orator observes, “ on recurring to the history of our race, we are at no loss to find facts on the subject of respect for the remains of the dead ; from the massy pyramid, the spacious catacomb, the beautiful mausoleum, and the bulky mound, to the simple flower-border and head-stone, which in some village grave-yard marks the spot where an infant's dust may rest ; there are monuments encompassing the world, which bear witness to the existance of this sentiment. Ancient sepulchres may be found in all ancient countries ; they abound through Europe and Asia, are crowded thick in some portions of Africa and are scattered every where on both divisions of the American continent, some of them supposed to be older than the pyramids.”

Again, excellent observations on page 18. "Respecting burial in Tombs or in the earth, there will of course be some difference of opinion. For myself I should give the preference to the latter. The vault frequently opened, exposes too often to the vulgar gaze the relics of what once was most dear to us, and the exhalations from a Tomb are injurious to the living ; besides, the process of dissolution is too appalling ; I would have it, if possible, go on and be consummated in the deepest seclusion of nature. Let us never see the loved form of the departed, after death has begun to mar its beauty and expression ; let the last impression if possible, be a natural and treasured one ; and however reluctantly, let us then take a long farewell, and memory thenceforth, be the guardian of a form that can never be restored."

We close our remarks, with an extract from page 21. "We wish a spot so arranged and appropriated, that affection may feel free to indulge itself in adorning the repose of the departed, and where the taste of individuals may have scope, and the living be attracted, not repelled. Such a place is the spot we now occupy ; its surface presents a pleasing variety ; the broad level above us, affords a favourable opportunity for the display of taste in the embellishments of art, while the stately oaks, venerable in all ages, awakens the most venerable of associations ; the heights and valleys, the steep declivities and gentler slopes, present a pleasing aspect to the lover of nature's irregularities. From the highest eminence, the prospect is varied and delightful ; on the north is our own beautiful town, dear at all times to the hearts of its sons ; on the west is the hill where your venerable sires, with a portion of their offspring now slumber. On the south are the broad fields and meadows, extending far away towards the neighboring villages and bounded by blue hills and forests. On the east you may discern through the trees the mighty sea, that common cemetery of the world ; whose voice chants a low dirge, as the east wind stirs up its waves, and which seems to bewail its own dead gathered from every age and every clime."

"Our ambition is not great in this matter, as indeed all ambition were incongruous in connection with a place of rest for the dead. We do not think to vie with Mount Auburn or Harmony Grove. It is enough for us, if we secure to ourselves a quiet, tasteful, hallowed spot, where the dust of our departing friends may be treasured and where we ourselves may repose by their side, when the last scene of nature closes on our view. Such a spot, is "Oak Hill Cemetery"; a perfect gem of its kind, and although small in comparison with some others, it is large enough for the present wants of this place, admitting readily of future enlargement, as occasion may require."

BY MRS. L. J. B. CASE.

'T is evening's hush; the first faint shades are creeping
Through the still room, and o'er the curtained bed,
Where lies a weary one, all calmly sleeping,
Touched with the twilight of the land of dread.

Death's cold grey shadow o'er her features falling,
Marks her upon the threshold of the tomb;
Yet from within no sight nor sound appalling,
Comes o'er her spirit with a thought of gloom.

See ! on her palid lip bright smiles are wreathing,
While, from the tranquil gladness of her breast,
Sweet, holy words in gentlest tones are breathing;
"Come unto me, and I will give you rest !"

Night gathers round—chill, moonless, yet with tender,
Mild, radiant stars, like countless angel-eyes,
Bending serenely from their homes of splendor
Above the couch where that meek dreamer lies.

The hours wear on ; the shaded lamp burns dimmer,
And ebb that sleeper's breath as wanes the night,
And still with looks of love those soft stars glimmer
Along their pathways of unchanging light.

She slumbers still, and the pale, wasted fingers
 Are gently raised as if she dreamed of prayer ;
 And on that lip so wan the same smile lingers,
 And still those trustful words are trembling there.

The night is done; the cold and solemn dawning
 With stately tread goes up the eastern sky ;
 But vain its power, and vain the pomp of morning
 To lift the darkness from that dying eye.

Yet Heaven's full joy is on that spirit beaming,
 The soul has found its higher, happier birth,
 And brighter shapes flit through its blessed dreaming
 Than ever gather round the sleep of earth.

The sun is high, but from those pale lips parted,
 No more those words flit on the languid breath,
 Yet still the expression of the happy-hearted,
 Has triumphed o'er the mournful shades of death.

Through the hushed room the mid-day ray has wended
 Its glowing path to a pulseless breast ;
 The gentle sleeper's mortal dreams are ended ;
 The soul has gone to him who gives it rest !

At the junction of Holly path with Central square, is a lowly cenotaph, as represented in the vignette. The Bible opened, and encircled with a branch of olive, resting on an inclined slab, supported by a marble base. On the left page, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die," and on the right page, "Believest thou this?"
